#41 It is difficult to say give people autonomy to decide with no regulation when society has to pay in the health care costs of obesity.

89% of those in group B who voted on comment 41 agreed.

We are committed to open our work process
See and track how we work day by day:

We are a citizen scientist collective that operates at the intersection of technology, behavioral sciences, and society.

We employ dynamic systems theories, analyses of social structures, and the science of design to transform organizations.

g0vNYC is working to bring a participatory model to inform city decision making and election processes and to connect organizations and districts around similar issues to solve them in a more effective way.
